OHIO MERCHANTS REPORT GOOD DAY

See Record Shopping, If Weather's Good the Rest of the Week

As the annual rush of Christmas holiday shoppers started in earnest today, Salem merchants announced that, to give belated buyers ample time to inspect stocks and make gift purchases, they will keep stores open until 9 p. m. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Buyers Out In Force

Inspecting attractively arrayed counters and window displays, throngs of buyers were in the business district throughout Saturday. Many out-of-town shoppers visited the city, merchants reporting that it was by far the "best day" of the pre-Christmas shopping season.

Stores were obliged to add extra clerks, delivery aids and other employees to provide the best possible service to their patrons.

Postoffice officials, adding special employees to assist in handling the giant flood of mail, again requested residents to hurry their mailing.

Thousands of greeting cards, letters and parcel post packages are expected to go into the mails this week.

Ohio "Loosens Up"

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19.—Old man Ohio has loosened up and opened his more or less musty pocketbook to buy Christmas presents.

This cheering news comes from the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, whose business it is to find out whether the shoppers are buying or not.

Retail sales in several large department stores over the state Saturday broke all records for a single day, in points of numbers, the council reported, and predicted that this achievement would be duplicated during the final Christmas shopping week, barring unfavorable weather.

FAIRFIELD MAN HANGS HIMSELF

Wm. K. Murphy's Body
Is Found In Back Yard of Home

William K. Murphy, 63, of East Fairfield, hanged himself in the backyard of his home at 4 p. m. Sunday.

Dependancy over ill health is believed by relatives to have prompted the act. He had been in failing health for several years.

Murphy's wife visited neighbors Sunday afternoon, returning to find her husband's body hanging from a tree to which he had tied a clothesline, police reported.

He was well known in the East Fairfield district and was born in New Waterford on Sept. 12, 1869, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy.

He is survived by his widow, Catherine, and a sister, Mrs. W. F. Carroll of Wooster. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at St. Joseph's Catholic church in Alliance. Burial will be made in the Alliance Catholic cemetery.

This Would Be Nice Job—In Summer

You may have labored under the delusion that the weather in your particular part of the country is real tough. But look at this and forget your former notion. When it arrived in Boston recently, the fishing trawler, "Holy Cross," carried an accumulation of ice on her superstructure and rigging that made the boat like an ornamental ice berg. The "Holy Cross" had been prospecting for Friday dinners off the Grand Banks.

Legion Will Donate Tonight For Aid of Needy 'Buddies'

Post Members to Contribute Food for Comrades and Families; Clifton Reeves to Speak

Tonight will be observed as "Donation night" when members of Charles H. Carey post No. 56, American Legion, gather at the post rooms, East State st.

Members of the post have been asked to bring articles of food, non perishable, which will be distributed to ex-service men, who are out of work and unable to provide for their families.

The Legion auxiliary also has been actively interested in the cases of needy ex-service men to the extent of providing wearing apparel for the men and their families.

In addition to the donations feature, there will be a short program, featured by a talk by Clifton Reeves, vice president of the Mullins Manufacturing corporation and chairman for northern Columbiana county in the share-the-work campaign, designed to give more men jobs and thereby help lift the burden on relief agencies.

Musical entertainment also is scheduled, according to announcement by Commander Everett Rich, followed by Clifton.

Presbytery Young People Meet Here

One hundred and fifty young people from Mahoning Presbytery, composed of parts of Columbiana and Mahoning counties and Stark and Trumbull counties, attended the eighth annual conference of the Young Peoples League of the Presbytery here Saturday and Sunday at the Presbyterian church.

The workers were Miss Mary E. Moore, New York City, of the board of foreign missions; Miss Emily Purdy, Youngstown, and Rev. Joseph Varner, Petersburg.

Saturday evening a pageant, "China," was presented by young people of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Youngstown.

Sunday morning Miss Moore spoke on "Why Christ for the World?" Three hundred and sixty persons attended this service.

Sunday afternoon a pageant was given portraying the Christmas story. The election of officers was deferred until the next meeting.

PARENTS AND 2 CHILDREN DIE AS HOME BURNS

Entire Family Perishes
In Flames of Log House
At Athens

RESCUE ATTEMPTS BAFFLED BY HEAT

Second Family In District Narrowly Escapes As Home Is Razed

(By Associated Press)
ATHENS, O., Dec. 19.—Four persons were burned to death early today when fire destroyed their log house at Gloucester, eight miles north of here.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Roland Matthews, each 23, and their two children, Gerald 5 and Junior 3.

Firemen were unable to learn the cause of the blaze. Neighbors discovered the fire and by the time firemen arrived, the house was a mass of flames.

Four victims were found in two different rooms. The bodies of Mrs. Matthews and the children were found in a bedroom, while that of the father was found near the heating stove.

Mrs. Matthews apparently had gone to the bedroom in an effort to rescue her children. Matthews is thought to have gone into the living room in an effort to locate the fire.

Matthews, a coal miner, only recently returned to work at the No. 1 mine of the Ohio Mining company after a long strike.

Coroner L. F. Lewis and Deputy State Fire Marshal Robert Bell are investigating the blaze.

Alfred Morgan and his family narrowly escaped death when their house was destroyed by fire at Union, near Athens. Morgan succeeded in getting his wife and children out before any were burned.

Mr. Ross was a cabinet maker by trade.

His wife died March 15, 1931. Mr. and Mrs. Ross had celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary December 25, 1930.

Surviving are these children: H. F. Ross of Pittsburgh; Mrs. J. N. Gilbert of Wilkesburg, Pa.; George M. Ross of New Brighton, Pa.; Mrs. Ed. A. Hoch of Salem; Mrs. Harry Leppner, Salem; Miss Mirrie Ross at the home and Mrs. L. I. Seese of Salem; 17 grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Kenan, Cozad, Nebraska; Miss Alice A. Ross of New Brighton and Mrs. F. P. Bossert of Cleveland.

Butler Twp. Man Heads Farm Bureau

E. W. Satterthwaite of Butler township was elected president of the Columbiana County Farm Bureau at the bureau's annual meeting in Lisbon High school auditorium Saturday.

Barnett Graham, Fairfield township, was chosen vice-president with Mrs. Mabel Satterthwaite, Butler township, as secretary-treasurer.

Three women directors, Mrs. Harry Miller, Fairfield township; Mrs. Howard Baker, Hanover township; and Mrs. H. Zimmerman, Salem township, were also chosen.

A report of the resolutions committee, recommending that the Ohio legislature provide adequate funds in 1933 appropriations for potato research work was approved. The report also asked the endorsement of county commissioners of the bureau's extension work.

GOVERNMENT PLOT FAILS; ARREST 117

Political Leaders Held;
Buenos Aires In State
of Siege

(By Associated Press)
BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 19.—A state of siege existed in this seventh largest city of the world today while arrests of political leaders implicated in a plot to overthrow the government mounted to 117.

The state of siege, distinct from martial law in that civil courts continue to function, was invoked yesterday for a 30-day period.

Act In Provinces

Governors were requested to indicate whether a state of siege should be declared in their respective provinces. Three have favored it and three others deemed it unnecessary. Pending other replies, President Augustin P. Justo withheld his signature to the state of siege decree until today.

The 82-year-old Hipolito Yrigoyen, who lost the presidency in the 1930 revolution and accused leaders of the radical movement, resumed his lonely life in exile on Martin Garcia island, in the mouth of the Uruguay river.

Another ex-president implicated in the plot, Marcelo T. De Alvear, and other prominent leaders probably will be deported to Europe. They were held on the warship Vientecinco de Mayo, now in the outer harbor and scheduled to start on a cruise.

The government said ex-President Yrigoyen was offered the choice of being exiled to Europe but preferred to return to the farm house on the little island.

Quiet Prevails

Quiet prevailed throughout the country. Press reports said territorial rains fell yesterday and contributed toward maintaining calm conditions. The majority of soccer games and horse races were suspended along with other public gatherings.

Both houses of congress adopted a measure declaring a state of siege in this city of more than 2,000,000 population. The police chief issued a communique which said ordinary entertainments and authorized public meetings were not banned.

STATE REOPENS PHONE HEARING

Week Allotted to Go Over Voluminous Batch of Evidence

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19.—A voluminous batch of evidence was ready for submission today as the state utilities commission turned its attention to reopening the long-pending Ohio Bell Telephone rate case.

Full Week Allotted

Having heard arguments in the case at intervals for the last eight years, the commission allotted a full week to the present phase of the inquiry, the purpose of which is to determine the company's monetary value as a means of fixing fair rates for its services.

On January 10, 1931, the commission set the valuation at $104,282,735, but this figure brought objections both from the state and the company, which is collecting increased rates pending the outcome of the investigation.

Company engineers estimated the rate-making worth a $145,000,000, while the state, seeking lower rates for the 700,000 Ohio Telephone users involved, set the value at $91,000,000. Both sides filed exceptions to the commission figure and the inquiry, in effect, started all over again.

Delves Into Profits

Now the commission will delve into profits of the western Electric company and the American Telephone and Telegraph company as they relate to Ohio Bell. Western Electric and Ohio Bell are subsidiaries of A. T. & T. Ohio Bell buys equipment from Western Electric. A. T. & T. collects a service fee from Bell.

The commission's authority to investigate the relationships of the three great companies is based on a United States supreme court ruling in a similar case in Illinois.

Struggle Fatal

ASHTABULA, O., Dec. 19.—Patrolman Howard Ritter was injured fatally and his fellow officer, Harold Coates, received serious injuries when they engaged in a struggle with Henry Gray, Negro, on the roof of a porch and crashed through the railing to the ground.

Ritter died in a hospital. The officers went to a place suspected of being a speakeasy and attempted to capture Gray. The latter was hurt slightly.

Held As Rebels

Following the discovery of a plot to overthrow the government of President Augustin P. Justo, of Argentina, two former presidents and hundreds of other political leaders have been seized and thrown into prison at Buenos Aires. The jailed ex-presidents are Hipolito Yrigoyen (above), who ruled from 1916 to 1922 and from 1928 to 1930, and Marcelo T. de Alvear (below), who was president from 1922 to 1928. The plot was revealed by the accidental explosion of a bomb.

NIECE OF SALEM MAN VICTIM AS CAR SKIDS

Miss Elizabeth Bunn Fatally Hurt Near
Warren; Akron Driver Held in Fairfield
Bus Accident; Find Body In Newell

Miss Elizabeth Bunn, 19, of Youngstown, daughter of the late Fred S. Bunn and niece of George J. Bunn, Salem merchant, was instantly killed in an accident near Warren Sunday. A Columbiana girl was injured in a school bus collision today while an East Liverpool man was frozen to death as low temperatures continued over the state and a large part of the nation.

Other deaths, resulting directly or indirectly from the cold wave, less intense than record-breaking temperatures of previous days, but still below freezing, occurred over the district and state.

The slippery condition of the Warren-Southington highway is believed by authorities to have caused the accident in which Miss Bunn, sophomore at Western Reserve College for Women in Cleveland, was killed. A guard rail piercing her skull, caused instant death.

Miss Bunn, accompanied by Youngstown friends, two of whom were fellow-students at the Cleveland school, was enroute to her home for the Christmas holiday vacation.

The accident occurred as the machine, driven by Lee Jackson, 25, of McDonald, skidded, left the highway, crashed through the guard rail and rolled over an eight-foot embankment. Miss Bunn was dead when she was extricated from the wreckage.

Two Others Injured

Two other persons, Mrs. E. W. Jackson, 25, of McDonald, and Lyman Frederick, 19, of Boardman, were injured in the crash. Frederick, a freshman at Western Reserve, sustained a hand injury while Mrs. Jackson sustained a fractured leg. E. W. Jackson was uninjured.

Miss Bunn was an honor student at Youngstown Raven High school where she was graduated. She was studying library work at Western Reserve.

She was born in Youngstown in May, 1913, a daughter of Fred S. and Jessie Thompson Bunn. She was a member of the Tabernacle United Presbyterian church.

Surviving are her mother, a sister, June Bunn Brown, wife of Dr. J. D. Brown, two uncles, G. J. Bunn of Salem and Dr. W. H. Bunn of Youngstown, and two aunts, Mrs. John Little and Mrs. N. L. Morris, both of Youngstown.

Funeral service will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Hold Akron Driver

An Akron driver is being held in custody of Marshall Miller of Columbiana pending investigation of the bus accident which occurred on the Columbiana-Middletown rd., at 7:50 a. m. today.

The man, Sylvester Gmeret, 1322 Fifth ave., is said to have been the driver of a machine which crashed into the front end of a Fairfield township centralized school bus, causing injury to a young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pegg of near Columbiana.

The collision is reported by Marshall Miller to have occurred when Gmeret, accompanied by three other Akron men, were enroute to Rogers to hunt. They are said to have attempted to pass the school bus on the right side, cutting in too suddenly and colliding with the vehicle's front end, forcing it into the road.

Clyde Firestone, near Columbiana, driver of the bus, immediately notified Sheriff W. J. Barlow while Miller was also called. He placed Gmeret under arrest and said that the man will probably be charged with reckless driving.

The Pegg girl sustained a fractured ankle. Other children in the bus sustained minor bruises and cuts.

War Vet Found Wead

Earl H. Guist, 41, East Liverpool World war veteran, was found dead in the Homer Laughlin China company plant in Newell, W. Va., a victim of cold and exposure, at 1 p. m. Sunday.

Coroner T. E. Cato of New Cumberland said in a verdict following an inquest today, that the man had slipped and fallen to the ground and was rendered unconscious. His body was found by Abraham Wheatley, 13, of Newell.

Surviving Guist are his widow and two children.

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 19.—The U. S. senate sentenced the Philippines to 12 more years of American receivership.

Will you tell me one thing? How can one nation tell when another nation is ready for independence?

But our government can do it. Yes sir, there is not a dozen of 'em that's ever been west of the Golden Gate, but they just could tell you to a day 12 years from now just when the "little brown brothers" would be able to mess up their affairs as bad as ours.

Certainly lucky for us we got our liberty when we did. Suppose the House of Commons in England was holding a clinic over us to decide if we were ready for "self-determination." Yours,

A LONG TIME
NEEDS MIRACLES
GOLD

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1932 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

MIAMI, Fla.—It says in the nineteenth Psalm, "A thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night."

That is true with the Almighty but not with man. The last three short years have seemed a very long time to him and he repeats this year with especial fervor the lines in that same Psalm.

"Let thy work appear unto thy servants and thy glory to thy children."
One more week, then, Christmas.
Another week then the new year,
and end of 1932, good riddance,
and another year begins.

Those that spend the next two weeks trying their best to do something worth while, will make good use of the new year. Those that do not, will not.

CHRISTMAS recalls the age of miracles and this country seems to need miracles as never before. There are miracles of intelligence as well as of religious power and faith.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., in the Philippines, talking through the air across the Pacific ocean to Republican voters all over the United States, is a good enough miracle.

A miracle of intelligence, something that would release frozen money, something that would put courage into frightened "bet minds", start wheels turning and men working, is what the nation wants.

BUT AS THE able Mussolini has said, it takes two to make a miracle, one to perform the miracle, one other to believe it. Some man might come with the miracle-performing idea, a new invention, a new plan for international finance that would restore the circulation of money in the veins of commerce and industry, now frozen fast to a small inadequate lump of gold.

The difficulty probably would be lack of faith. New ideas are usually carried through by violence only, as in the French revolution, our own American revolution, the Civil war or the upheaval in Russia, which has at least distributed land among the peasants, taught every child and manly old people to read and write, and replaced the autocratic brutality of czars with an autocracy less brutal.

GOLD, to which high finance clings with desperate determination may be the only hope although England has abandoned it and 1,000,000,000 of the world's 1,200,000,000 population have never known it.

There isn't much gold in the world. Government officials tell you that since Columbus discovered America in 1492 the whole world has produced only $22,000,000,000 worth of gold, its value calculated at the rate of $122.67 for one troy ounce of 480 grains.

Only $20,000,000,000 of gold in all the world, including that which is buried in the teeth of the dead, and Uncle Sam himself has outstanding in bonds, notes and gold certificates promises to pay more than $22-000,000,000 of gold, which of course he could not do, except by using the same gold over and over.

ALL the silver produced in the last 300 years is worth much less than $10,000,000,000, the amount this country lent to Europe. Production of silver, in prosperous times, with copper mines turning out quantities of it, as a by-product is only 12 times as great, in ounces, as the production of gold. Yet gold sells at more than 80 times the price of silver per ounce. Perhaps something could wisely be done about that.

dopesters understand what is needed what man could strengthen the Indians or the White Sox and how much he is worth. The whole situation could be plotted out without an error in the mind of the truly ardent fan, even if he had nothing to work with but the names of the players involved in winter trading.

They call it the national game,
but it might be called the eternal game, too. Only football approaches it as a subject of year-around speculation. It was only yesterday that the last strike of 1932 was made and it will be only tomorrow until the first one of 1933 is recorded. In the meantime the game goes on conversationally with runs and errors marked in a different kind of box score—the contracts and manipulation which was the basis of organized baseball.

The Stars Say:

For Tuesday, Dec. 20

Excepting for those in the employment of others, who are under the slightly doubtful aspect between the sun and moon, the astral influences makes for a generally prosperous and pleasant day. There is sign of benefits, favors or support of those in places of power or authority, with possible promotion or increase of funds. There may be some slight disappointment or delay or concern about elders. But the private, domestic, romantic or social activities should flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a pleasant and prosperous year with favors, preferment or more substantial tokens of friendship or recognition from those in power. But be careful in employment and be not disheartened at small delays or disappointments.
The personal relations will be happy and lively. A child born on this day should be popular, capable, ambitious, and be well endowed with social graces, but it may do better
"on its own" than in employment.

Stage separations frequently surprise even friends of the principals.
Among the latest is the friendly renunciation of double harness by Lance Ulric and Sidney Blackmer, one of the theater's supposedly real romances. Blackmer and I frequently exchange chit-chat about mutual interests and ways he has stressed adoration for the huskyvoiced Miss Ulric. Similarly, Miss Ulric, at casual meetings, constantly chants a litany of admiration for her North Carolina husband. Then, like a fork of lightning, they go separate ways. It's all confusing.

But E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, those grand stars, have struck off an ideal companionship in marriage in hand. While they maintain an apartment at 290 Park, their visits have become increasingly rare. Most of their leisure is spent in Europe, wandering from one retreat to another. They gavi-tate chiefly to warmer climes where in arched cloister, Miss Marlowe likes to knit while Sothern, whose voice is still of magnificent timbre, reads to her from the classics.
To them, the footlights have lost their tug completely. They do not even go to the plays in New York, Paris or London.

Most of us, after 40, I imagine, dream of pleasant acreage off asphalt paths, but few achieve it. My reactions to New York's suicidal frenzy is for a porch auberge near the glades of Fontainebleau, where, to the diapason of crickets,
I can rock, count my blessings and meditate upon the blessed promises. It is too much to ask, I suppose, to have some one scratch my back right between the shoulders now and then. But that would be elegant.

I note, a friend of early New York days, Francis Albertanti, is publicly director of Madison Square Garden. Francis is one of life's bright poppinjays who added much to the turn-over of human comedy during my stretch of copy reading horror on the old Mail. As a fresh cub, he was a dynamo who spent some of his energy bringing "buckets of editorial" (dead line-type slugs placed in tin pails) to owl-eyed jokers on the out-rim of the news slot. But now, with a whacking big cheroot, he's one of Pistiana's "smart mugs."

From a Kansas weekly: "McIntyre floats with the tire. He never argues."

Only this morning, I let a barber brush my hair his way.

Broadway Market

Recent announcement of new models by two of the largest producers and the approach of the Automobile Show in January to be followed by the usual peak buying season of early Spring has focused attention on the automobile industry. With figures for the first eleven months of the year available, indications are that total production of automobiles and trucks in the year 1932 will not far exceed 1,400,000 which is the lowest volume experienced by the industry since the year 1918 when many plants were diverted to the production of war materials. With this reduced volume, profitable operation has been impossible except in the case of Nash Motors, the only company to show black figures for the year, and in this case the slight profit shown is attributable in good part to income from a substantial holding of Government securities. Estimated passenger car purchasers for the full year 1932 represented only about one third of the annual average during the decade from 1920 to 1930.

Having learned their lesson in 1921, the automobile companies have shown excellent management in the control of inventory. Stocks on hand both with dealers and manufacturers are reported to be lower at this time than for any similar date since comparable records were first compiled. It has been recently estimated that by the end of this year there will be nearly 9,000,000 cars in use that are over five years old and over 13,000,000 that are over four years old. It is obvious from these figures there is piling up a large potential demand for replacement alone. The automobile market has probably been deflated to the maximum point and any change in volume of production will be on the upside. That the increase will be gradual is clearly indicated by the reduced buying power of the public. However, the potential demand is apparent and any increase in consumer buying power will be reflected in the automobile industry very quickly.

Automobile manufacturers are in general unhampered by trade-unions and are efficiently operated on a piece work basis so that adjustment of labor costs can be quickly accomplished. The general deflation of commodity prices, coupled with astute buying assures substantial economies in material costs. Thus even though intense competition will bring lower prices, given a fair increase in volume, the leading manufacturers will be able to convert their losses into satisfactory profits. Investment at current levels in the securities of those companies in strong financial position, who have been able to hold their share of the available business, should prove very profitable over the next few years.

Pre-Yule Week Schedules Varied Social Activities

That the pre-Christmas week in Salem will be a busy one socially as well as commercially, is evidenced by the array of activities scheduled here this week.

Perhaps the biggest social function of the week will be the benefit card party given by the Salem Associated Charities tonight at the Elks home. Most of the fraternal orders of the city, and some clubs, are affiliated with the Charities. And each is being responsible for at least two tables of cards.

Kerr, superintendent of Salem's schools, is scheduled to speak on "Faith in America." Mrs. W. H. Matthews is chairman of the committee in charge of this special program.

Social calendars of the churches for the week include the annual Christmas party of the Christian church Sunday school on Wednesday evening at the church. The special program being arranged by the junior department is under the direction of Mrs. Fred Rogers and Howard Minner.

Epworths to Meet

The Epworth league of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold a social Wednesday evening after the prayer meeting service.

SYNOPSIS

Nevis and Bill Lancaster, young newlyweds, leave the little Pennsylvania town where they were raised and go to New York. The lease of a small apartment and Bill becomes a bond salesman. As he succeeds, they take a house and entertain beyond their means to make an impression. Nevis sees little of Bill. She disapproves of their extravagance but Bill assures her it is necessary to promote business. Then Bill meets the flirtatious Olive Blanchard, who makes no secret of her designs on him. When Nevis suggests a vacation, Bill tells her he has been invited on a star fishing trip by Mr. Bartlett, a prospective client. Nevis, furious, asks him if it is business which accounted for his attention to Mrs. Bartlett at a party. Bill believes Nevis should help him by accepting the attentions of men they meet in a semi-social way. Olive makes a habit of going to town and having Bill drive her home. He is flattered, but it is Nevis he loves. One night, he phones Nevis that he will be late. Nevis visits Della Hunt, a friend, and meets Harry Carter, the well known architect. A car drives up to Olive's home, across the street, and Nevis is stunned to hear Bill's and Olive's voices. Bill explains that Olive met him in town and that she means nothing to him. Determined not to show Bill she is hurt, Nevis encourages Carter's attentions. Olive's proprietary manner worries Bill. Carter loves Nevis. At a dance, Nevis sees Bill kiss Olive. Carter knows it is because of resentment that Nevis permitted him to kiss her but he hides his time.

CHAPTER XII

Then Bill began to get careless about letters. Nevis found them in his bureau, in the suit she was sending to the cleaners. Not letters exactly. Quotations, mostly, from the more outspoken poets. There was one which settled it—in Nevis' mind.

"Bill," wrote Olive, "I've just come across this. Isn't it—I mean, doesn't it express things—exactly?" From the Oxford Book of English Verse, laboriously searched out, had Nevis only known it, and bringing a slight increase in color to Bill's face as he read, Bill who enjoyed an off-color joke as much as the next fellow but wasn't, perhaps, quite educated up to the authentic cry of the poet, and authentic expression of the inexpressible.

"Oh, Western wind, when wilt thou blow. That the small rain down can rain. Christ, that my love were in my arms. And I in my bed again!" "Golly," Bill had murmured, inadequately, reading—Bill who enjoyed a bedroom farce, too, as much as the next fellow.

He'd meant to destroy it. But had destroyed an "account over due" statement instead.

An anonymous poet of the, perhaps, sixteenth century had written those four touchingly poignant lines. But this was the twentieth century and Olive was far from anonymous. Nevis crumpled the bit of paper in her hand, smoothed it out and put it back where she had found it.

She didn't speak of it to Bill. She couldn't. But at this time she began to believe, quite definitely, that Bill's affair with Olive had gone beyond what seemed to be routine kissing and usual stage effects.

She began almost involuntarily to deny Bill. It was inevitable, not knowing, but guessing, not having what is crudely known as evidence, but believing, loving him a lot and hating him as much and hating herself more for the doubts she couldn't possibly avoid, feeling herself soiled—if it—

It was not to be expected that Bill would either understand or admire this attitude, nor enjoy the cheek turned to his kiss. The result was something of a tension, a nerve strain, which ended, or rather went on, in silly, almost causeless quarreling. Bill was grouchy. Nevis was remote.

And because her senses were young and fresh and ardent and because she was what her senses made her, as all of us are, she turned to a person who had not hurt her, had not betrayed nor caused her hours of wonder and question and aching, face downward on a bed in a cool room with the shades drawn and the tears soaking the best pillow cases.

Carter, of course.

And so, if Bill was saying gloomily to Olive, "Nevis does not understand me," (Of course she doesn't, you poor boy," Nevis was saying to Carter: "Men—make me sick.")

He agreed that they could and should. He held her hand over a discreet tea table in town. At an hotel. Later he held it even an even more discreet table in the penthouse. They were alone. A little later he kissed her and because he did it with brilliant gentleness and genuine tenderness she cried a little on his shoulder and presently kissed him back again, as sweetly and as frankly as a child, and asked for a loan of his handkerchief.

He was very much in love with her and perfectly sincere about it.

That was his danger, his own peril, and his peril for women. He was always sincere. When it was over, it was over, and no hard feelings and no one irreparably hurt—as far as he was concerned—no real harm done. But while he loved, he was immersed in it and the world could go by. And generally did.

But paused to make comments en route.

Bill said abruptly: "You are seeing too much of Carter. People are talking. I don't like it. I won't have it! You'll cut it out at once, do you hear me?"

She replied evenly: "Certainly I hear you. Anyone could within half a mile. I might remind you though that people are talking about you and Olive."

"More fools they, then. That's different, anyhow."

Nevis said, carelessly: "What if I do meet Harry in town now and then? Everyone does it. You meet Olive. Lots of people meet other people. It doesn't mean anything."

"I'm not so sure of that. You're my wife," he shouted, "and I won't stand for it."

Sublime and unreasonable illogic of men. She was amused by it, fleetingly — "and they call women inconsistent!" She said, merely: "Don't make yourself ridiculous."

He made threats, he issued ultimatums. She said sweetly: "If I don't see Harry any more, will you cut out Olive?"

"That's different," he answered again. "I can't go around cutting out women—what a damned fool thing to say—here in our own crowd. What would people say? You are talking through your hat."

It ended there. She told herself: "If he isn't willing to give up Olive, why should I offend and hurt Harry, who is my friend?"

There was no reason, she thought, why she couldn't have an affair with Harry Carter. She used the word, mentally, in its most elastic sense. She had no definite definitions of technicalities. An "affair," that was all. Lunch, tea, dinner, gifts of flowers and books—well, it had already progressed that far—long discussions of life and love—a kiss or two, perhaps. She had no cut and dried plans, no blue prints, so to speak. She didn't stop to consider that when one has said "A. roundly, it is difficult to evade saying B. She simply thought, vaguely: "I won't give up my friendship. Why should I not be entitled to the same freedom as Bill?"

But by mid-summer she was deeply involved; more interested than she realized and finding the comfortable absorption of the other man in herself growing necessary, almost vital. She had drifted very far from Bill and knew it. His fault, she thought.

And as for Carter, the chase was becoming a little long drawn out. There, in Nevis' own house one summer afternoon, while Bill was on the links, he said to her definitely: "It can't go on like this, my dear. I'm flesh and blood after all. If you care for me, and I think you do, you'll understand. I love you, Nevis. You've meant, you mean something to me which I swear no other has ever meant. You know my circumstances, you know my life. I can't beg you, as I would if I were younger, to leave Bill and come away with me. I have to think of Kay because of the boys. But I can promise you if you will permit our friendship to become something closer, dearer—that you won't be hurt by it in any way. I loathe discussing practicalities with you. But we can be very careful. Things can be arranged. No one will ever know."

She said, "No—no, Harry—please don't talk about it—" she thought, "Why not?"

After he had gone, designedly losing his control enough to snatch her in his arms—after all Hari was out and Kari off on his own pursuit—and to kiss her hotly and ardently, she went upstairs to her room and looked at herself in the mirror, her shaken lips and shining eyes, frightened eyes, and listening for Bill's step, thought, half terrified, half defiant, "Well, why not?"

"Why not?" thought Nevis, as Bill came galloping upstairs, and burst into the room like a blonde thunderbolt.

Bill, dancing attendance on rich middle-aged wives; Bill, discovered kissing Olive Blanchard in the appropriate moonlight; Bill, living far beyond their means, even if he was the best bond salesman in the Burton organization, was not the Bill with whom, two years previously, she had walked to an altar under the sympathetic eyes of half a Pennsylvania town, and whom she had promised to love, honor and obey. Well, love him she did; and always would; honor him, she could no longer; and, as for obedience, that was ridiculous in this day and age. Perhaps if their original plan of life had not miscarried them to New York and Westlynn, perhaps if they had remained home where possibly they belonged, things would have been different. As it was she saw no particular reason why she should not indulge in a discreet and stimulating flirtation with Harry Carter. It was safe enough; Harry was married; so was she. And, from her recent observations, a good three-quarters of the married people around her were indulging themselves, some innocently and some not so innocently, on the side. The parsley and olives of the matrimonial dish. Olives is good, she thought.

But Bill was full of exclamations. He said, tempering usually.

"Listen, what do you think about it? Fluff and Waterford are getting it. Lee Leon keeping Maude Carey—she's on the stage, you know—for months. Fluff just found out. So's wild. She's going to Reno at once."

Nevis said, blankly, incredulous: "I don't believe it!"

"Well, you'd better. Sam told me he ought to know. He's her brother, isn't he? The old man is all cup up about it. The office is like an undertaker's emporium today. Fluff came down to see Sam and his father. She had a lawyer with her. They saw Waterford. Gosh—I saw him when he came in. He hardly spoke to me. Big row in Barton's private office. You could hear it a block away. Fluff has one of those curving voices, you know. And old man Barton shouts like a drill sergeant when he gets started. Hell to pay, all around!"

Outstanding Cage Attractions Scheduled In Salem This Week

Lisbon Cagers Oppose Quaker Five Tuesday; Charity Tilt Friday

Lay aside a few nickles out of your Christmas shopping funds for two ultra-attractive basketball events scheduled in your home town this week.

Ring out the old year with the proverbial bang there'll be a varsity high school basketball game Tuesday night between those two ancient rivals, Salem and Lisbon, then Friday night a charity cage carnival will be staged at the school auditorium.

Three games, each an attraction in itself, will be played for the benefit of Salem Associated Charities.

Charity Carnival Friday

One of the season's leading attractions should attract a large throng of cage addicts to the school hardwoods Friday night when the Associated Charities program is staged. It's a strictly all-star program featuring three classy Salem teams, leaders in their respective divisions, against rivals of their own classification from nearby towns.

Every nickle above small expenses which must be incurred, taken in at the gate will be contributed to the Charities fund to help circulate Christmas cheer in every home in the community. And there's no reason why everyone shouldn't attend, bringing the kids along, for a fine program will be held.

Clowns Entertain Kiddies

The reason for bringing the kiddies is the Canton Clowns, a powerful basketball team whose players appear in regalia of the old-time circus entertainer. There will also be two professional entertainers, Muttis Stahl and Johnny Holman, whose humorous antics and colorful maneuvers have made them popular in several states.

The Clowns bring a team composed of Dick Sanderson, Ed Markey, Stan Kurts, Pete Elliott, Red Van Allmen, Ray Corl Wair, Koozt and Mickey Earenflight. Anyone familiar with Canton McKinley High basketball for years past will recognize every name on the roster while the majority of the players also played with the original Canton Orphans in the original Central Professional League.

The Clowns stacked up against a strong Salem all-star team as has probably been developed here.

Postpone League Games

Enabling local fandom to concentrate all interest on these two attractions, Joe M. Kelley announced today that all city league activities at the Memorial building have been postponed.

Pre-Christmas holiday engagements at the building have taken up the auditorium floor, making impossible the playing of games as scheduled this week.

The Salem-Lisbon game was originally carded for Friday night but was moved up three days through an agreement of both coaches. Two games are booked, reserve teams clashing in the preliminary.

Beat Salineville

Lisbon opened its season last week, nailing out a veteran Salineville quintet 23-22, on Salineville's home court. And anyone familiar with the Salineville gymnasium will know that to win a game there is quite an accomplishment.

Coach Phil Bille, hoping to gain a victory over the Quakers, has developed another fine team for the ambitious attempt and a classy, hard-fought battle should ensue.

It will be Salem's final contest this year. The team will remain idle until Saturday, January 7, when Chaney of Youngstown plays here.

Two undefeated teams will collide in the first game of the program.

Joe Kelley's midwests, battling the unbeaten St. Columbian all-stars of Youngstown.

Salem Pennzipp lassies, a great girls' team with such stars as Hazel Reossier, Anne Zelle, Lea Pribley, the Paxson sisters and others, will oppose a strong array of maidens in the second game.

Rogers I. G. A. all-stars defeated Laird's West End gas station cagers 42-18, in a one-sided game Saturday.

Tullis, Early, Baker, Longshore and Dickers played for Rogers with Walker, West, Boals, Rogers, Heron, Fleisher and Paxson representing Laird's.

Joe Crumlin, who will manage the Washington club next season, led in three base hits, with 18, and Eric McNair, young Philadelphia infielder, won the honors in doubles with 47. Simmons, although he finished eighth among the regulars, produced the most hits, 216.

In team efforts, the Athletics had a collective mark of 295. While the Yankees and Cleveland followed with 286 and 285, respectively. The Yanks did the most scoring, making 1,002 runs. With Washington holding its opposition to the lowest total 716.

American Threat In British Grand National

Sarazen, Vines Adjudged Outstanding Athletes for 1932 in Nation-Wide Poll

BY ALAN GOULD,

Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Additional returns in the Associated Press' nation-wide poll on the outstanding American athlete of 1932 failed to disturb the final ranking order of the list headed by Gene Sarazen, winner of the American and British open championships with record-breaking golf.

The slightly revised figures, however, tightened the contest for positions in the top flight and broke a sixth place tie in favor of Bill Carr, Olympic 400 meter champion, over the one and only Babe Ruth.

Here's the final ranking of the first ten in the contest, based on the votes of sports writers and editors:

1. Gene Sarazen, golf 33
2. Ellsworth Vines, Tennis 36
3. Eddie Tolan, track 34
4. Joanne Fox, basketball 33
5. Jim Bausch, decathlon 27
6. Bill Carr, track 25
7. Babe Ruth, baseball 20
8. Harry Newman, football 12
9. Lou Gehrig, baseball 9
10. Tony Canzoneri, boxing 8

The country's experts cast a total of 297 votes in the second annual contest to decide the year's great performer, the honor last year went to Pepper Martin, world's series hero of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Olympic Stars Popular

The voting disclosed the popularity of Olympic track stars. Three of them gained places in the first ten. An odd contract was that Eddie Tolan received 34 votes for his double victory in the Olympic sprints, whereas his dusky rival, Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette got only one vote in recognition of his sweep in the National championship sprint honors in the Olympic tryouts, where he beat Tolan at both 100 and 200 meters.

Olin Dutra, professional golf champion, had his total increased to five votes in late balloting but the rush to elect Sarazen left most of the other golf talent out in the cold. Ross Somerville and Johnny Goodman, winner and runner-up in the national amateur, received one vote each as did Gus Morland, Western amateur champion.

Harry Newman, Michigan's all-around quarterback, was the only

THEATER
Attractions

JOE E. BROWN is back. Back at the State theater, where he will be seen on the screen today in what is claimed to be his greatest comedy hit of all time, "You Said a Mouthful."

The star does some plain and fancy aquaplane stunts in his latest comedy hit.

In this he is aided by Preston S.

Foster, both of whom are adepts with the sea planes in which they are hauled over the rough waters of the Pacific, at Catalina Island, at a terrific speed.

Joe playing the part of an artless youth, is induced to step on the board through a misapprehension but manages to stick on by luck and finally topples into the water through sheer awkwardness.

Joe's ungainliness is simulated for picture purposes, and when he plunges into the water, it is really his skilled diving that makes it appear to be a funny accident.

Ginger Rogers and "Farina" are others in the cast.

HERBERT MARSHALL (the phenomenal star of "Trouble in Paradise"), Sari Maritza, Charlie Ruggies and Mary Boland, four recruits to the movies from the American and European stage, play the leading roles in "Evenings for Sale," a Viennese musical romance, which comes to the State Tuesday.

Like Maurice Chevalier's "Love Me Tonight," and the popular "This Is the Night," "Evenings for Sale" tells its story with music as well as words.

A love affair between a penniless Austrian nobleman and a girl from the nouveau-riche middle class, complicated by the presence of an American widow with a heavy bankroll, is the story upon which the action hinges.

Lunch For the School Child

Recently I read with great interest a report giving the results of a questionnaire sent to school authorities and teachers. It was designed to find out what foods are most popular with children at lunch time.

The most favored foods were found to be sandwiches of salmon and tuna fish cooked rice, hard boiled eggs, bread and butter, milk, fresh and stewed fruits.

The children were attracted to the food when it was displayed with a bit of decorative color, such as parsley or a drop of jelly.

Food authorities recommend a hot lunch for the school child. Many modern schools provide a supervised luncheon. Here they serve a carefully planned luncheon, hot, nourishing and attractive.

Include "Protective Foods"
For lunch the mother should plan a simple, yet nourishing meal, containing a hot dish. Even though the luncheon period is limited, the child should be given this hot dish with a glass of milk and buttered bread. If time permits, fruit and cookies, fruit and gelatin, tapioca with dates, or some other equally nutritive dessert should top off the meal.

The school child needs foods that will help him to grow. It is important that "protective foods," such as milk, fruit, vegetables and eggs, are always included in the daily diet. Of all the protective foods, milk is the most valuable. Every school child should drink at least one quart of milk a day. For the undernourished and underweight child, arrangement should be made at school so that a glass of milk is taken between meals.

Please bear in mind the importance of proper selection of foods to guarantee the growth and development of children. Foods should be varied and tempting.

Encourage Child to Eat
The child should never be forced to eat, but he should be encouraged to eat. Make it your business to explain how essential it is to eat at meal time and to eat everything. How often have I heard mothers coax, plead and beg children to eat. This attitude is unwise and increases the feeding problem.

I would advise that you make a list of foods to be served for the school luncheons. Plan your menu one week in advance. Include such valuable foods as milk, fresh fruits and vegetables, cereals, cream, butter and eggs. If the child cannot come home for lunch, explain the dangers of rich foods and filling desserts.

Co-operation between the mother and the school and medical authorities will result in education of the child to the value of nutritious foods. This practice in youth will develop sturdy and healthy citizens for the future.

Answers to Health Queries
L. O. F. Q.—What should a girl of 13, 5 feet 4 inches tall weigh?

A—She should weigh about 115 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.
